The old Corydon Taylor Residence is located on Taylor Road, in Claridon, Geauga County, Ohio.

Mr. Joe Fenwick, present owner and occupant, bought the home and farm in 1898. It was built in 1826 by Deacon Horace Taylor, who came to Ohio from Connecticut in 1811. Deacon Horace Taylor is the father of Corydon Taylor.

The building is two stories of brick construction with stone foundation. The original building is in good condition. One story frame structure and porch were added to rear at a later date. The brick of which the house is constructed was made, by Deacon Horace Taylor, of clay taken from his own land.

The above data was taken from History of Lake and Geauga Counties covering periods from 1798 to 1878, and in the possession of Charles Wilmot of Chardon, Ohio.
